

UN Global Compact – UNGC

The difficulty in participating in initiatives such as the Global Compact is often not due to a lack of sustainability, but rather to gathering, collecting and documenting the right data.

An integral part of your CSR activities

Founded in 1999, the United Nations Global Compact (UNGC) is the most important multi-stakeholder platform advocating company engagement towards sustainable development and responsible corporate governance. With more than 13,000 participants from over 145 countries, it has grown to be the largest initiative of this kind.

Whilst UNGC's 10 principles were essential for the reporting until 2017, the focus is now shifting towards UN's 17 SDGs.

For more than 20 years DFGE has been serving companies of all industries and sizes. We help you to calculate reliable data and formulate meaningful answers for a more sustainable economy with a manageable effort on your part.

We support you in the preparation of the CoP (Communication on Progress). For this purpose, we provide you - based on the information available in your company - with answers to all questions regarding the ten principles of the Global Compact. In addition, we advise you on how you can implement sustainability even better in your company. You can also use the resulting Corporate Social Responsibility Report for your company for further sustainability communication.

„Being an owner-lead company with lean structures, we have to invest our capacities with caution. Top priorities are quality and effectiveness of our products. However, and thanks to the extensive support by DFGE, we could establish in parallel a very practicable sustainability management.”
